

I've been posting on Bardon Mill matters about the increasing problem we're having with dog fouling on the path from the station, down and through the woods. It seems to have gotten a lot worse recently, and a few days ago I passed 5 piles whilst out, 2 of which were very close to the bin. Katie Baron has been down and put two home made poo bag dispensers up, but I wonder if we need more official signs, and maybe another bin or two? We were also wondering who actually owns the woods?, and whether they could help. I know part of it is a nature reserve, but I dont think its the majority of that land. It would be great if the Bardon Mill council could get involved to try to prevent this from becoming an even bigger issue than it already is.
